I will give you a brief account ow our organization was broken up with a view to inducing you to can the election don your attempt, foreseeing ome officers had such outcome for the present gove- mittees ment. Our society grew rapidly far think? more rapidly than one could have ex- men-vil pected. We had meetings in Hyde bers park, gathering thousands of with appropriate banners and much of th enthusiasm. We stormed the house of ing commons and forced the members to had listen to us. Our enemies, the men, as rested us and kept us in jail.

Finally, when the house of comp was in despair of being able to det us by open methods it must nee go about undermining our society. secret session a committee was pointed to find and execute some me od to break us up. This commune consisted of old bachelors-rather, and curmudgeons-all of them confessed woman haters and mean, enoug take advantage of those/weakn peculiar to our sex.

They began by laying/a plan rid of our admirable officers and such women as would wreck t clety. Our annual election and ay ment of committees came off after these men began their worl they took advantage of the oppo ty. Just before the election we surprised at a large accession t membership. Then on the day election, while we were prepari the ballot, handbills were sca about the hall in which we met that at a store on Piccadilly standard goods that all wome have were offered at less than h usual price. A silk dress that ordinarily cost £50 might be 1 £20.
